Xtreme

Coleman Xtreme™ Coolers

Our new range of Coleman Xtreme™ coolers comes with an updated look and modern shape. They are designed to keep large volumes of food and drinks cool for up to five days in high temperatures.

These high performance coolers are in it for the long haul and are perfect for your family at the campsite, on a picnic, or for those long summer barbecues.

High performance is guaranteed thanks to the thick, injected polyurethane insulation, filling every gap of the cavity, and ensuring there are no areas of weakness.

Models from 50qt and larger have an additional insulation in the lid to increase the cooling performance even more.

As an added feature, robust lids are strong enough to be used as a seat for up to 113 kg!

Semloh Electrics was first launched by George Holmes in 1991

The company has been passed down but kept within the family to this day.

The name "Semloh" comes from its founder, George Holmes. It is simply "Holmes" spelled backward.

The background of the page is a photograph of several large spools of cable. In the foreground, there are spools of red, purple, and silver-colored cable. The spools are made of cardboard and are stacked. The lighting is warm, highlighting the texture of the cable and the cardboard.

THIN WALL AUTO CABLE

Thin Wall Auto is a low voltage cable, ideal for use in automotive and marine applications where its reduced insulation thickness and higher current carrying capacity both help to greatly reduce weight and volume in use. This is particularly important in the increasingly large and complex wiring harnesses used in today's smaller cars, where space and weight are at a premium. The cable's lead free, PVC polymer, hard grade insulation also offers excellent resistance to petrol, chemicals and abrasion, and has a wide working temperature range to 105°C.

STANDARD PVC AUTO CABLE

Standard PVC Auto Cable is a general purpose, low voltage cable, made up of flexible conductors of stranded copper wire which are PVC insulated. It is suitable for a variety of automotive and marine applications in working temperatures up to 70°C, and multi-core versions are commonly used in most British and European towing and trailer applications. Cable descriptions state the number and size of cable strands rather than the total cross-sectional area of the conductor. Typical uses might include: side/tail lamps, indicators, fog lamps, car alarms & stereos 9/0.30 and 14/0.30, head lamps, wipers, cigar lighters, screen heaters, fuel pumps 21/0.30 and 28/0.30, charging circuits, battery feeds 35/0.30 and 44/0.30, heavy duty charging circuits and alternator feeds 65/0.30 to 120/0.30.

Coaxial cables are commonly used for high frequency data and signal transmission, where signal loss and outside interference must be kept to a minimum. They are generally constructed using an inner conductor of solid or stranded high conductivity copper which is insulated with a solid, foam or airspaced polythene dielectric. An outer conductor, consisting of a high conductivity copper wire braid, is applied over the dielectric and then sheathed with PVC.

Tri Rated single core cable is so named because it complies with three different national standards American UL, Canadian CSA & British BS for heat resisting, PVC insulated, flexible cables, thus eliminating the need for dual stocking. It has a high temperature rating and is flame retardant, and is used extensively for the wiring of switch, control, metering, relay and instrument panels of power switchgear, as well as for internal connections in rectifier equipment, motor starters and controllers.

HEAT RESISTING SILICONE CABLE

Insulated silicone rubber cables have excellent resistance to high temperature variations, whether hot or cold, where PVC insulated cable would melt or become brittle or crack. They also have good resistance to many types of oil, dilute acids and chemicals including oxygen and ozone, helping to prevent atmospheric ageing, and are low smoke and halogen free, burning to form a silica oxide coat which will maintain the cable's integrity in the short term. For these reasons they are used typically in a range of 'difficult' environments, such as steel works, foundries, refrigeration units, cement factories and glassworks, as well as in the production of heating and lighting equipment in aeroplanes and ships, and the manufacture of engines and household appliances. For further cable protection, under difficult mechanical conditions or for insertion in tubes, the silicone insulation can also be impregnated with a glass fibre braid.

- Working Temperature Range: -60°C to +180°C • Voltage Rating: 300/500V
- Conductors: Flexible tinned annealed copper. Class 5 SIAF to BS6360
- Insulation: SIAF – Silicone Rubber SIAFGL – Silicone Rubber Insulated with Lacquered Glass Fibre Braid

Available in a range of Outer Sheath Colours – Please contact our Sales Department for further details.
